B. Underwater Voice

FX: Weather sting/music

VO: Weather this weekend will be blustery so prepare yourself, take an umbrella because we've got twenty mils of rain and that's... a heap of rain. It's like we'll be under water...hey Steve, you heard my underwater voice? Yeah nah, it's great, it's great. Yeah nah, nah, my kids love it...hold on (underwater voice) hey there, I'm wearing my gumboots outside...

VO: With Daikin, the weather doesn't matter.

MV: I can do it better, let's go again, let's go again...(fades under)

C. Cats & Dogs

FX: Weather sting/music

MV: And another night of rainfall expected, so be careful, it's gonna be raining cats and dogs out there. Do you know where 'cats and dogs' comes from? It's an old Norse thing. The cats and dogs would all sleep up in the thing, the straw, y'know the roofs? And when it rains they would get washed off. Literally they cannot hold on, and I mean, they've got claws, so it must have been bucketing down...

D. Wind Chill

FX: Weather sting/music

MV: Twenty degrees today but with wind chill will make it feel a bit more like seventeen. And I don't know how we came up with that number. Because it's totally subjective how you feel. I mean, if you're wearing a scarf, y'know, you're gonna probably feel like it's twenty-one, coz it warms you up a lot. I don't...I know I don't feel the cold, I'm like...I'm like a bear in the woods...
